Explanation

The bill requires school boards to hold a crisis response drill once every three months, as a substitute for a fire drill. The bill also requires school boards to develop the crisis response drill format in consultation with the appropriate law enforcement agency and to allow a representative from the local law enforcement agency to supervise and participate in the drill. The bill is not anticipated to result in a fiscal impact to local and regional school boards.

Although it is not mandated, there is a potential cost to municipalities that choose to have law enforcement involvement in crisis response drills. In such a case, a minimal cost could be incurred by the Department of Public Safety Division of State Police and municipal police departments associated with overtime resulting from supervising and participating in the drills.

The Out Years

The annualized ongoing fiscal impact identified above would continue into the future subject to inflation.
